

Jean-Yves DUBUISSON, TROPIMUNDO SU Local Coordinator

Jean-Yves Dubuisson is the Head of the team “Paleobiodiversity of animal and plant communities and lineages” of the “Research Centre in Paleobiodiversity and Paleoenvironnement” CNRS-MNHN-SU (UMR 7207). He holds an MSc in Genetics and Biodiversity from SU, and he is holder of a PhD in Evolutionary Sciences from Université Montpellier 2. He was appointed at UPMC (now SU) in 1997 for an assistant professor position in evolutionary botany, and then obtained a professor position in 2006. He is in charge of many courses and lectures in plant systematics, evolution and ecology, from bachelor to master degrees. His research focuses on plant phylogeny, and more especially on the historical parameters that explain the composition of plant communities in tropical oceanic islands.
